

Cluster	Subject Title	Instructor	Credit	Semester
K-P	Essentials of Leadership and Group Dynamics	Dr. Gregory Ching	2	Winter 2024
Subject Description
For professional and personal success in today's dynamic and interconnected world, leadership skills and the ability to navigate group dynamics are crucial. In this course, you will gain the knowledge, skills, and strategies you need to become an effective leader and a valuable member of your team. By combining individual and group activities with theoretical concepts, this course emphasizes communication, problem-solving, and decision-making. It will also cover topics such as motivation and team dynamics. The course will conclude with a discussion of ethical considerations in leadership.
Objective
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Define leadership and understand its significance ● Communicate effectively and resolve conflicts ● Promote diversity, equity, and inclusion ● Thrive in challenging situations ● Be able to think critically and responsively
Learning Method
Lecture, group activities, group discussion and sharing, reflection writing, and final reporting.
Content
Include the following but not limited to: role of a leader, creating trust, influencing, motivation, negotiation, group formation, and managing conflict.
Requirement
This is an engaging course. Throughout the course, students share information and ideas with each other. The willingness of the student to engage rigorously with the material, to listen, to engage with an open mind, and to actively participate in class is very important.
Evaluation
Attendance (20%) Class participation/engagement and professionalism (50%) Final presentation/reporting (30%)
Textbook and reference
Lecturer prepared materials. Levi, D. (2014). Group dynamics for teams (4th ed.). Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage. Organizational Behavior by Robbins and Judge
Pre-course reading and preparation (if any)				